PART 1: FREEDOM OF INFORMATION OVERVIEW

The Bracks Government came to office determined to return openness and accountability to public life. Victorians had demanded nothing less and expected, quite rightly, that their democratic institutions would be returned to them - that they would, once again, feel able to exercise their right to access government information.

Clearly, Victorians have reclaimed this right with gusto. Each year more people are making use of the Freedom of Information Act 1982 (FOI Act) to access documents, the number of Freedom of Information (FOI) requests received having increased by over 7 percent in 2004/2005 compared to the previous 12 months. In fact, a record 22,493 requests were reported as received by nearly 500 agencies in 2004/2005.

Overall, during the past five years requests reported by agencies across the State have increased by more than 57 per cent. Agencies have also reported that increased amounts of routine information and documentation are being made available outside the FOI process. This is an unmistakable sign that open and transparent government is flourishing in Victoria.

Again this year, the personal affairs exemption (section 33) is by far the most frequently used exemption. This exemption allows the consideration of the protection of an individual's personal affairs when making decisions on access to documents.

I noted in last year's FOI Annual Report that the Victorian Ombudsman had commenced an own motion examination of the administration of FOI in Victoria. FOI processes and legislation - a relatively new and complex area of government - will always be a work in progress and I therefore look forward to the Ombudsman's recommendations as to how we can continue to make improvements to this essential democratic mechanism.

As always, however, I am delighted that more and more Victorians are making use of the FOI Act. It means that Victorians are confident in both their individual entitlements and in their civic processes. It means that democracy is alive and well and I look forward to continuing to develop the FOI process to increase the opportunity for access to information for all Victorians.

PART 2: USE OF FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

The statistical information contained in this report was collated from data provided to the Department of Justice from 490 State Government bodies subject to the FOI Act. The statistical data was requested by the Department and provided on a uniform basis by agencies, in accordance with the requirements of sections 64 and 65AA of the Act.

1. Number of Requests, Internal Reviews and Victorian Civil and Administration Tribunal Appeals

Table 1 provides a summary of the total number of FOI requests, corresponding internal reviews and Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal (VCAT) appeals, for each period since 1984/1985.

The number of requests reported in 2004/2005 showed an increase of more than 7% on the figure for the previous year to 22,493.

In 2004/2005 applicants in 2% of requests sought an internal review. Original decisions on access were confirmed in 67% of internal reviews.

The number of VCAT appeals lodged decreased by 11% in 2004/2005 when compared to the figure for the previous year.

Of the 22,493 requests reported by agencies, less than 1% (0.4%) were appealed to VCAT. Decisions made by the Tribunal resulted in agency decisions being fully confirmed in 74% of cases. VCAT partially upheld agency decisions in 24% of appeals decided, while in 2% of the appeals decided in 2004/2005, VCAT granted full access to documents.

2. Access Decisions on Requests

The level of full access to documents as a proportion of all access decisions made in 2004/2005 increased marginally from 75% last year to 77% this year. Partial access decisions decreased to 20% in 2004/2005, compared to 23% in 2003/2004 (see Table 2 and Chart 1). This means that applicants gained access to documents in 97% of requests where access decisions were made. Access was refused outright in just 3% of these requests.

In 2004/2005, personal requests represented 65% of total requests received while non-personal requests represented the remaining 35%.

Charts 1 to 3 illustrate the outcomes of requests, reviews and appeals in 2004/2005.

TABLE 2: ACCESS DECISIONS ON REQUESTS

DECISION	2004/2005	% OF TOTAL REQUESTS*	2003/2004	% OF TOTAL REQUESTS*

Note: This table reflects access decisions made in 2004/2005. It does not include situations where a request was received and one of the following applied: the applicant did not proceed with the request; the request was made in 2004/2005 but had not been decided at the end of the reporting period; the agency did not hold the documents sought; or the agency and the applicant agreed on a form of access satisfactory to the applicant outside the FOI process.

* Access decision percentages have been rounded to ensure they total 100%.

3. Most Frequently Cited Exemptions

The five most frequently cited exemptions in 2004/2005, in order of most used to least used were:

- ◇ Section 33: the protection of an individual's personal affairs;
- ◇ Section 30: internal working documents containing opinions, advice or recommendations of officials or Ministers where it would not be in the public interest for those documents to be released;
- ◇ Section 35: information provided in confidence to government bodies;
- ◇ Section 38: where another enactment (other than the FOI Act) categorises particular documents as confidential; and
- ◇ Section 32: documents affecting legal proceedings.

4. Fees and Charges for Requests

The statistics provided suggest that fees are being waived or reduced in approximately 32% of cases. This is based on the total number of requests (22,493) multiplied by $20.50. If the fee were charged in each case, revenue received from fees would have been $461,106.50. However, fee revenue reported was $313,482.

It is difficult to determine exactly how much was waived in charges. Often where charges are to be waived agencies do not calculate the actual charges that would have been applicable. If the total charges revenue of $297,831.41 were divided across the 22,493 requests, each applicant would have paid $13.24 in access charges.

5. 'Top 30' Agencies

Of the 490 agencies that provided information incorporated into this report, agencies in the 'Top 30' handled 81% of requests. Sixty-nine percent of requests received by the 'Top 30' agencies concerned personal documents. Table 4 identifies the relevant 30 agencies.

PART 3: DETAILED STATISTICS FOR EACH AGENCY

6. Requests Received by Agencies

Agencies often receive applications which do not proceed for a number of reasons. This can be for reasons such as the applicant not paying the fee or the request for information not being relevant to the agency. There are also instances where the applicant is provided with the information without needing to proceed with the formal FOI process. While many of these requests can require a commitment of time and resources by the FOI officer, they are technically not requests under the Act.

The Attorney-General's February 2000 FOI Guidelines to assist in the administration of the FOI Act require agencies to look to providing information outside the FOI process. The existence of the FOI Act should not mean that the formal process provided under it is the only means of obtaining access to documents or information of an agency.

Appendix A provides details of the number and type of requests received by agencies and the outcome of those requests.

7. Requests for Internal Review

After the initial access decision, if an agency decides not to grant access to a document, the applicant has a right to appeal that decision. The first stage of appeal is an 'internal review'. This requires a written request to the principal officer of the agency asking that a fresh decision on the request be made.

Appendix B shows those agencies that received requests for internal review of a decision and provides an indication of the outcome of those reviews. The outcomes relate to the original decision made by the FOI officer in terms of whether it was confirmed, varied or overturned. Where a decision of the FOI officer is varied under review, the fresh decision may be a minor variation on the original decision, or may involve the disclosure of a significant amount of additional information. Reporting by agencies does not differentiate between these two potential outcomes.

Where an original decision is shown as being overturned, this means the applicant was granted full access to the documents in question.

Only those agencies that received requests for internal review are listed in Appendix B.

8. Appeals to the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal

If an applicant is not satisfied with the outcome of an internal review, he or she may then appeal to VCAT.

Appendix C identifies the agencies where decisions resulted in appeals being lodged and/or decided by VCAT in 2004/2005. The data in this table is based on the number and type of decisions handed down by the Tribunal in 2004/2005, whether or not those decisions were as a result of appeals lodged in that year or previous years. This was necessary given the time that can often pass between an appeal being lodged, the mediation and other processes that can occur prior to a formal hearing, and a final decision being handed down by the Tribunal.

The VCAT process includes conciliation between parties whereby the applicant and respondent are called before the Tribunal for a preliminary conference to try to resolve documents in dispute before the case proceeds to a hearing. Appeals are often withdrawn as a result of this process.

9. Exemptions Cited

Where an agency refuses to allow an applicant access to documents, the agency is required by the FOI Act to give reasons for its refusal. In refusing access, an agency is limited to the situations provided for in the Act (exemptions). Appendix D lists all the exemptions cited to applicants by agencies when refusing access.

10. Decision Makers

The FOI Act operates at the agency level. It is an official of that agency who makes the initial decision and a different official (or the principal officer) who reviews a decision if requested by the applicant.

Appendix E names each official, specifying their title and, where applicable, the number of times that official made a decision to refuse access to some or all of the documents requested.

11. Fees and Charges

In 2004/2005 the Act required a request for access to documents to be accompanied by an application fee of $20.50. Any other monies payable in respect of a request after the application fee has been paid are referred to in the Act as "charges". This explains the differentiation between the fees and charges in Appendix F. All charges occur after the initial step of paying the application fee and apply to the cost of supplying copies of documents, providing access in other forms, supervising access to documents, and searching for documents.

The Act provides that fees can be waived or reduced where payment would cause hardship. Similarly, charges can be waived where the applicant is impecunious and the request is for personal documents, as well as in a few other situations. The decision on whether or not to waive a fee or charge rests with the agency.

12. Retrospective Access

Agencies were asked to comment on the practicability of extending the period of retrospective access. Agencies, other than councils, are not required to process requests for non-personal documents created prior to 1978 and councils, not prior to 1989. Requests for personal documents are not subject to a time limitation, and therefore depend only on whether documents are still held. Agencies have generally indicated that due to the infrequency of these requests, the resources required and document retention policies, it is not practical to extend the period of retrospective access.

PART 4: HOW TO USE FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

13. What is Freedom of Information

Since 1982 the FOI Act has given the community the right to apply for information held by Ministers, state government departments, local councils, most semi-government agencies and statutory authorities, public hospitals and community health centres, universities, TAFE colleges and schools. Where a service has been outsourced by a government body, access to documents relating to the service would generally still be possible where the service is provided under contract or the agency is the contract manager, unless some specific provision otherwise applies.

14. More information

The Victorian Government Freedom of Information Online website (www.foi.vic.gov.au) provides guidelines and general information to assist access to government documents by using the FOI Act. Information on this website includes the contact details of agencies subject to the Act.

This website also includes an explanation of freedom of information, details of what information is (and is not) available, how to apply, rights of complaint, frequently asked questions and copies of Freedom of Information Annual Reports.
